THE BUILDING ORDINANCE. THE remission of the Building Ordinance to a committee, has probably obviated some warm discussion, and is therefore satisfactory. The Hongkong Association has, we believe, materially influenced the discussion arrived at by His Exchargeable on Book and Packets of Patterns cellency, who was aware that some addressed to the United States of America transmitted via the United Kingdom will considerable opposition would be made to various provisions it contained. It is noteworthy, however, that Sir R. home, be given to the Surveyor General of intended buildings-but do not place in the hands of any one the power of vetoing any undertaking quite apart from constructive considerations, as the clause in question would do. As it now stands, any man who wishes to build upon a suitable locality and is prepared to carry out all requirements may be prohibited by the simple "je ne le veux pas" of the Gov. ornor or Surveyor General. It is right that a power should exist of prohibiting the erection of buildings contrary to law. but none should exist when the law is duly complied with. The powers of a Surveyor General should be precisely those of a magistrate, -in one sense-to ensure punishment to the law breaker: but should give no right of interferencewhen the law is complied with. It was probably intended that permission should be held as certain if the specifications were correct. But the wording of the clause simply provides "that permission shall be obtained " previous to building without reference to details—so that if the Surveyor had quarrelled with a man, he could refuse permission to build with no reason assigned. We trust however that this objectionable power will be withdrawn from the amended ordinance, and that compliance with the regulations as newly passed will be held in itself to confer the permission to commence work.

WHILE we plume ourselves upon the progress of modern science, we are apt to overlook the fearful amount of well-bred ignorance which prevails upon the commonest topics. That the uneducated boor should be ignorant of geographical discovery is not surprising, but we naturally expect those in high places to possess, say, the ordinary knowledge demanded by the Civil Service Commissioners say, constant experience demonstrates in China. The public action of Mr Gibson, H.M.'s Consul, in regard to the Camphor Monopoly, the proclamation issued by the Taotai having been published by us about a month since (and which by the way we observe with some amusement is reproduced in late contemporary files as recent news.) WE find the subjoined paragraph in our contemporary of this morning :-

The Hongkong public is still waiting to hear from Macao, that the pirates engaged in the Annamite affair have been brought It hears, on the contrary, that the Macao Portuguese implicated in the affair are still at large and still holding barraknown facts. The defendant in Regina v. Saint cannot adjure the Acting Attorney General of Hongkong in such strong language, but there seems to be an equal reluctance (supposing the above statements are correct) in Macao and in this Colony to take any steps that would lead to an exposure of the horrors of the coolie trade -as formerly carried on, at any rate. Perhaps the learned A. A. G. does not care to proceed. It is upon record that once upon a time, the A. A. G. sat on the Supreme Court bench and heard an application for a criminal information for libel, arising out of some remarks by the then defendant, who represented the China Mail. No previous recourse had been had to the Attorney General. Mr Pollard, who appeared for the prosecutor, said "he did not think that the Attorney General should be called upon to prosecute every libeller." His Lordship e., the present A. A. G.) replied, "certainly not; he ought only to act in cases of a flagrant and very malicious And the application was Now the libel alleged against the present defendant is "flagrant and very malicious." in which case why is the prosecution not gone on with? Or it is not. Then why has the A. A. G. made himself the agent of a prosecution which as a judge he would condemn? We know that judges receive no fees, but an honest difference of opinion may we admit to arise quite independently of any "consideration" of that sort. It must not be for a moment supposed that the A. There may be reasons why he will not, but they must be left to the imagination to conceive.

LOCAL

ORIMINAL.

By a list elsewhere published, it will be called on the present Session.

THE premises of Messrs Lane, Crawford & Co, had a narrow escape from fire this forenoon: and on the principle that small beginnings make big endings, the escape may be looked upon by all as most satisfactory. It appears that a coolie was engaged, by the aid of a lamp, in spiling a hogshead of brandy or other spirit in a corner of the lower godown, when by some accident a spurt of spirit caught the flame of the lamp and was up in a blue flame all over in a moment. A number of rum casks near by were enveloped in the flame, and from the nature of the surroundings, had the flame not been at once checked by the admirable arrangements of the firm on this head, the fire must have obtained a hold which no engine in the world could have checked. The coolie, who was considerably scorched on the right leg and left | weep. This on a large scale.

THE two Kowloong stone-cutters now tinder trial for having been concerned in causing the death of Mr Yancey at Kowloong Docks, were brought before Mr May on remand to-day. Evidence produced went so far as to prove that prisoners left their work the night of the attack and returned next morning early, one of themhaving a cut on his forehead the origin of which he would not account for.

TO-DAY'S POLICE.

Mr May was on the Bench, but there were few cases of importance. Captain Carey, of the Royal Artillery, appeared to charge Lokong No. 56 with having committed an assault upon his litthe boy in the Public Gardens last night, From the evidence of Master Carey, it appeared that the little fellow had accidentally dropped a stick into the basin of the Fountain, for which the lokong (without explanation) came forward and hit him on the leg. THE NORTH. The following are additional items of News from the North.

(Recorder.) We hear upon authority, witich we be lieve to be reliable, that the Chinese off cials have desparched sevent hundred Imperial Troops from Tieutsin in a sailing vessel to Chefuo, to proceed thence to the Gold Diggings and drive away the foreigners)" We understand that these troops first desired to take passage in one of Messrs Russell & Co.'s steamers, but that the price asked for conveyance, namely Tis. 3,000, was considered too high, and they therefore resolved to take a sailing ship. The couse quences of this step are likely to be serious as it is not by any means improbable that the diggers may offer resistance; or, if they do not, that the Chinese may go farther than the necessities of the case may require and not content themselves, as they should with merely bringing the men to their Consul, provided they do not offer resistance. Mr. Stronach of H. B. M.'s Consulate has returned from Nankin; but we are informed has not effected anything of importance with reference to the Yangchow affair beyond the personal delivery of a despatch, with which he was charged, to Tseng-kwo-fan, and his satisfying himself that the Vice-Roy has not done anything to retract his adverse decision, and does not appear to have any intention of doing so at present. This intelligence is by no means reassuring, and would seem to indicate that the remonstraces the authorities at Pekin at all events take some time to have any impression upon the Vice Roy, and except some further and strong demonstration of force be made will not obtain redress for the insuit offered A report was current on the 7th Inst. to the effect that the steamer Mona had struck lent gale, while engaged in transporting Japanese troops. The question whether the Tingchais of the Mixed Court are to be allowed to arres Chinamen in the employ of Europeans with out reference to their masters, came forwar in a case yesterday at the Mixed Court The Chinese Magistrate said lie would not in a case where money was due from a Foreigner to a Chinese—the particular matte before him-make such arrests: but did not seem clear as to the question generally.

The laying down of the law by Mr. Mowat in regard to the Singapore-man on board the Chinese gunboat Pluto, who was sent recently from the Mixed to the Supreme Court, as a British subject, is a little startling. The Law Secretary, upon the grounds that the man was on board a foreign, that s not a British, man of war, held that he had no jurisdiction over him, overlocking, as it seems to us, that if the Phito can claim the right of its flag in the same way as a European man of war, it becomes Chinese territory; and a British subject upon Chinese I territory is under the jurisdiction of his own authorities. It is possible that if the grounds were taken up that it is illegal for British subject to enter the Naval or Military service of another nation, sufficient ground might perhaps be considered to exist for the refusal to exercise jurisdiction, as Courts have the right to refuse the protection of their laws in cases where persons have deliberately evaded them. But this offence happens to be provided for in the Order in Council, and is punishable by imprisonment for any term not exceeding two entering upon any action either with or aagainst the Imperial Government, and it cannot therefore be the intention of the British Government that being in the Chinese serexterritoriality, or this, the simplest punish-

NIE "-The German press contains a letter by Karl Blind on the alleged exclamation of Kosciuszko, "Finis Poloniæ!" which has so long been considered an authenticated historical utterance. The German writer proves from a letter of the Polish patriot. dated Paris, 20 Brumaire, XIIth year (October 31st, 1803) that Kosciuszko not. only never made that exclamation on the battle-field of Macieovijce, but that he regarded it as "a blasphemy, against which he protested with all his soul." He said it would have been "a criminal thing in the mouth of any Pole, but especially in his own," Kosciuszko wished at the time that the mistake into which historians had been led should be corrected, but his desire was certainly not complied with. Karl Blind mentions that the original of the letter, which was addressed to Count Segur. the author of the 'Décade Historique.' is preserved in the archives of the Segur family.
